H. W. CRAMER

The old-time friends and neighbors of H. W. Cramer will be pained to learn of his death, which occurred on Sunday, March 29th. For some time there had been reports of the ill health of Mr. Cramer, who went from here to Sumner, Wash., several years ago to make his home. When it became known that his ailment was cancer of the stomach, no one expected other than a fatal termination of his disease. Mr. Cramer was an old soldier, and long a member of Leavitt Post No. 103 of which organization he was past commander. He settled near the present site of Putney in an early day, and bore a blameless character for upright citizenship. A widow, two sons and two daughters survive him.
